My land is not considered highly erodible therefore a conservation plan is not needed.

Part or all of my land is considered highly erodible and I am implementing my conservation plan.

If you are unsure, consult with your county soil & water department. If you have highly erodible land, you will need to submit a conservation plan proposed by the Soil & Water Conservation District for Highly Erodible Land.

*Please note, if a trust is a shareholder in a corporation or a partner in a limited partnership, you must fill out an application for both the corporation/partnership AND the trust.
